Tangled Wreckage Which Took Lives of Twenty

LOCKED TOGETHER In death tangle, two Goliaths of CNR mountain run lie tangled and crumpled on heavily-wooded bend overlooked by towering Mount Robson at Canoe River. This exclusive air photo of disastrous wreck was taken this morning and rushed by chartered plane to New Bulletin. Work crews still probe tangle of steel for bodies of the four front-end railway workers who were entombed in their cabs when two nightlies roared into each other on bend. Huge crane is plucking up battered and smashed parts of troop train and throwing it down 75-foot grade in desperate race to clear right-of-way for traffic. Three front coaches—filled with members of Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, Korea-bound—were reduced to nothingness. Live steam spurting from broken pipes caused many of 20 deaths.

DEATH IN MOUNTAINS is symbolized by this all-steel baggage car forming cross on desolate stretch of rail near Canoe River where two huge CNR mountain engines smashed into each other at bend 83 miles west of Jasper. Twenty died and 64 were injured in split-second tragedy which turned a routine mountain run into one of the most tragic of all Canadian rail disasters. Heavy snow, narrow right-of-way and steep, 75-foot roadbed made work of rescue and salvage gangs more hazardous. Korea-bound soldiers pitched in to aid in relief work and dragged many of their dying comrades from tangled junk heap of first three coaches.

20 Dead As Order Is Wrong

Train's Directions Cause Big Wreck

Twenty men died in a grizzly two-train wreck near a remote whistlestop in the Canadian Rockies yesterday because three words were dropped from a train order.

A west-bound special, carrying 250 of Canada's special force soldiers, ploughed headlong into a loaded east-bound passenger express on a curve of the CNR's mountain mainline.

The words "at Canoe River," designating the whistlestop siding at which the trooper was to wait until the passenger express had passed, were omitted from the message for the troop train's crew.

Death toll in what is the west's worst train disaster now stands at 20, including 16 soldiers dead and four of the train crew missing, presumed dead. Two of the soldiers died while an emergency crew was moving them from the wreck to Edmonton hospitals.

Out of the twisted steel and splintered wood of the wrecked cars were taken at least 64 injured, 22 of them in serious condition.

More Dead Are Feared

Back from the mountain slope scene of the tragedy, a Jasper doctor forecast: "Many more will be dead before the final count is made."

Sixteen of the known dead are soldiers, members of the Second Regiment Royal Canadian Horse Artillery who were serving with Canada's special force.

Bodies of the other four, once the crew of both trains are believed to still lie beneath the twisted wreckage of the crash.

The railway men are tentatively identified as Engineer Harvey Charuk, Engineer Stanislaw both of Jasper; Fireman Gieschuk of Jasper and Fireman Prostunuk of Edmonton.

Shattered, shocked and badly scalded when the wrecked locomotives belched steam over them, more than 60 persons injured in the disaster were returned to Edmonton this morning.

All Ambulances Used

They came aboard an emergency train—made up of the battered remnants of the trooper—and uninjured survivors among them smashed windows of the railway cars to lift stretchers of the injured from the train to waiting ambulances at the station platform here.

Every available ambulance in Edmonton met the train; some of the injured were carried to hospital in the police wagon, others in a greenhouse truck.

Volunteers worked with desperate speed in the 17-below weather to move the injured; even so it was an hour and a half long job.

An army officer hurried volunteer workers with the plea "Some guys here may not make it alive to the hospital."

Last to be moved from the train were the blanket-wrapped bodies of 12 of the victims. Two of the men died as the emergency train moved Edmonton bound out of Jasper late last night.

Crews Probe Wreckage

Today, as salvage crews probe the wreckage on the mountain slope a few miles beyond Canoe River and workmen clear the debris so that trains out of Edmonton and Vancouver can begin running again tonight, survivors are beginning to recount the circumstances of the wreck.

The 17-car trooper special was slightly late as it pounded through Canoe River siding and upgrade along a wooded hillside, almost within the shadow of Canada's mightiest peak, Mount Robson.

The soldiers aboard it were cheerful, some of them hurried at the first lunch call to the diner, one of the rear cars in the train.

The weather was clear; at almost mid-day the sun was shining brightly, although a foot of snow covered the ground beside the railway tracks and blanketed the mountain sides.

A half-minute before the collision, the trooper glowed over a trestle, bridging a 500-foot mountain canyon.

Missed Crash On Bridge

Only that half-minute of time saved it from meeting the transcontinental on the bridge; the death toll then might have mounted into the hundreds.

The troop train rounded a bend. The transcontinental express loomed up, speeding eastward along what its crew believed to be a clear track.

The giant locomotives ground together.

Missing 3 Words Cause of Wreck

A baggage car and three sleepers of the special catastrophe off the rails. The engine of the troop train shot into the air, landed on the top of the second coach, crashing it down to the rails. The first car telescoped and landed on top of the front section of the third coach.

Cars Hurtle From Track

Baggage and express cars of the transcontinental flyer lurched sideways, hurtling from the tracks.

From the twisted, tangled masses of steel that seconds before were powerful locomotives, steam belched.

As the grinding of steel on steel ended, the heating line from the locomotive burst, sending a scalding stream of water down the sides of the cars.

It drenched some of the survivors who rushed from the flyer and from the rear cars of the troop train.

Those not too painfully burned grabbed axes and hammers and smashed at the crumpled bulk of the cars that held their companions.

"We could see some of our boys buried underneath the wreckage, but we couldn't get to them," a soldier said. "We were one of five soldiers who escaped from the third coach. Twenty-one of the 36 passengers in the car were killed or injured."

SCREAMS DIE AWAY

A scream of the trapped men died as the rescuers worked to reach them.

The body of one soldier was found cut in two. Only a hand and another was taken from the wreckage.

"Most of them never knew what hit them—thick God," an army surgeon said of his dead companions. "The plunging, rolling cars had ripped up the railway right of way."

Mourn Railroaders

Women of the town ripped themselves for hangings as they mourned the death of four railroaders in the crash.

Six hours after the collision, an emergency train made up of undamaged coaches moved down the mountain side, carrying the injured—many suffering burns, some of them first degree burns, others broken limbs, back and head injuries.

As the train moved into Jasper, an Anglican minister went aboard. An injured soldier died in his arms.

At Jasper, a few of the least hurt persons were removed for treatment, but the majority continued on—lo reach Edmonton.

Met By Special Train

At Edmonton, they were met by a special one-car train carrying four army doctors, a number of nursing sisters and medical attendants.

The Red Cross dispatched a train carrying medical supplies westward to meet the train at Jasper.

This morning, while doctors and ambulances stood by at the CNR station here, the emergency train was stopped at Spruce Grove, 10 miles north of Jasper, to let the North West Army Command medical officers aboard.

They checked the wounded to determine priority hospital need and then the train moved off for Edmonton, reaching here shortly after 9 a.m.

Survivors able to walk from the train were bundled into cars and led to ambulances. Some wore facial bandages of burns suffered.

Trains Return to City

Westbound trains which left Edmonton yesterday before the wreck of the troop train were halted at Jasper, and were returned to Edmonton last night.

One of the halted trains was the general cabinet minister, Hon. Lionel Chevrier, who was bound for the west.

For the townspeople of Jasper, the tragedy night in the mountains was the second to slum the little mountain resort within a few months.

In September, thousands of heart-broken townspeople of Jasper finally gave up a week-long, costly search to locate an Edmonton child, Lorraine Smith, lost in the wooded area near Jasper's Lake Edith.

Soldiers who survived the wreck tonight are expected to be released to their homes. Dr. Gordon Strathgairn, who organized the hospital train, said there were no many fractures among the troops.

"There was no army medical man aboard the troop train. That was a grave error," he said. "Something should be done about it. . . that is, we only troop train I ever heard of without a doctor."

"Two soldiers died aboard the hospital train while it was undergoing a mechanical check-up at Jasper."

One of the first medical men to reach the wreck, Dr. Gordon Strathgairn of Jasper who organized the hospital train, said there were no many fractures among the troops.

"There was no army medical man aboard the troop train. That was a grave error," he said. "Something should be done about it. . . that is, we only troop train I ever heard of without a doctor."

Station Presents Sad Scene As Stretchers Leave Train

By Barry Broadfoot

Soldiers of Canada's Korean Brigade who passed through the city Tuesday morning returned today—24 hours later—bearing their dead and injured buddies.

It was a train of grief that pulled into Edmonton's C.N.R. station at 8:30 a.m. bearing the dead, injured and unhurt from the Canoe River train wreck.

Twenty-four hours earlier, it had been a happy train, full of 300 young, war-weary soldiers on their last lap before moving off for Korea.

A long line of 13 ambulances—all the city could muster—stood beside the track. High officials of the army and the CNR stood waiting with newspapers and cameramen on the platform.

In the station rotunda, hundreds stood silently waiting for news. As the train halted, the army took over. It was strictly an army show.

At every coach door, men's faces were stationed to prevent any soldiers of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery from leaving the train.

The troops had been given definite orders not to talk to newspapermen.

One lieutenant said, "I have orders to snub the camera of the first man caught taking a picture. Finally, as the dead soldiers were being taken from their death cots, all press representatives were told to leave the station."

RATHER NOT TALK When the troops were allowed to leave the train, they walked about in little groups still thinking of their dead buddies and injured pals. They also were thinking of that tangled mass of wreckage from which they escaped a few short hours earlier.

The atmosphere of all was expressed by one young, grin-faced officer who said, "Pleaze, fellows, we've been through a hell of a time. We've lost a lot of our friends and a lot of good men."

"I'd rather not talk about it," was the last word on the train coming down and we don't even know if some of the boys will make it to hospital."

Each corpse was shrouded in railway blankets, and tarped to each was the dead soldier's "dog tag." Many of the bodies, an army officer stated, were only identified through these tags.

PRIORITIES Each ambulance made two trips to hospital. The badly injured received top priority and on down the line.

The Royal Canadian Horse Artillery enroute to Fort Lewis, Wash., preparatory to going to Korea, will be taken back to Vancouver Military Camp for regrouping and re-outfitting.

An army spokesman stated the unit will be sent to Fort Lewis with the least delay possible.

The troop train crew got the impression it was to walk to Gannell, about 10 miles west of Canoe River, for both passenger trains.

CITY SURVIVORS AT KAMLOOPS

Three Edmonton district residents have been safely evacuated to hospital at Kamloops, all with minor injuries.

They are Mrs. W. H. Peterson, Edmonton, Mrs. P. H. John, Edmonton, and Fred Sleeg, Beverly, B.C.

SYDNEY, Nov. 22.—(CP)—About 150 persons are attending sessions of the executive committee of the synod of the Church of England in Canada and of the department of general synod.

The annual meeting started yesterday and will continue until Friday, with discussions closed to the press. It will be adjourned tomorrow morning to enable the clerical lay delegates to attend the funeral of the church's primate.

Met. George F. Kingston. The meeting was originally scheduled to be held last September in St. John's, Nfld., but was postponed at that time due to the Canada-wide railway strike, and its location was shifted to Toronto.

William Harvey in 1928 was the first to demonstrate that the blood circulates.

Cab Driver Escapes Hurt

An Edmonton taxi driver escaped injury late yesterday afternoon when his car collided with the brakes, and the tender of the slow-moving locomotive struck the front end of the cab.

A fender and the hood were the only parts of the cab damaged, police said.

Crumpled Wreckage Terrible Sight from Air

(Edmonton Bulletin photographer Eric Bland flew over the scene of the railway wreck at Canoe River today to take the following pictures of the disaster. He describes the scene in the following story.)

By Eric Bland Bulletin Staff Photographer

JASPER, Nov. 22.—I flew over western Canada's worst train wreck today.

It was a terrible sight. Our twin-engine aircraft swooped low (500 feet) into the curling wisps of smoke from the still-burning wreckage.

The giant locomotives looked as if they were only one vast, twisted mass of engine.

The snow within a radius of 100 yards of the engines was melted to the bare ground by clouds of scalding steam that had roared out at the crash.

A few twisted steel beams and a pile of mangled wood was all that was left of the two forward troop train passenger cars where some 17 men perished and about 50 suffered injuries.

A baggage-express car, relatively undamaged, lay at right angles to the track; with three quarters of it extending over an 80-foot embankment.

The car seemed unmarked, but the doors were wide open. WORKERS COULD Work trains were at each end of the wrecked train, with their engines belching clouds of white smoke in the brilliant morning sunshine.

Spence trees bordering the tracks were snapped off. The steel mass looked reddish from the plane. Smoking like a great mountain of rusted scrap iron.

Wrecking crews were still failing to remove bodies of six engineers from beneath the twisted wreckage.

Deep snow and intense cold seemed to be slowing down the work. Many workers were warming hunched hands at small fires. It was a terrible scene.

Star Roughed Up In Football Scene HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Things got a little too realistic yesterday in filming a football scene after Paul Douglas came out of the pileup with two broken ribs, his studio reported. Licence Lack Brings Fines To 30 Here

First of a total of 300 radio licence offenders appeared before Magistrate S. G. Main in Police Court this morning.

A total of 30 paid $150 and costs when they pleaded guilty of failing to procure a licence for the 1950 period.

Several of the accused complained that they were not approached by anyone in regard to permits. The Magistrate said licences can be obtained at the post office at any time. Owners should not rely on the licence selling that goes from door to door.

The remainder of the offenders will appear at a later date.

A fine of $40 and costs was given John Melik, 9818 74 avenue, this morning on a charge of dangerous driving.

Melik struck a man on a bicycle recently at the corner of 98 street and 80 avenue, knocking the cyclist 20 feet.

Twenty-year-old Ted Domagala, no fixed address, was today remanded for sentence until Nov. 24, on charges of possessing stolen property.

The young man, a resident of Edmonton for the past five months, pleaded guilty to being in possession of a number of car wheels and tires, a battery and heater and a sun visor.

Domagala was arrested on Nov. 14 by Det. Ed MacLellan, who stated that the items were taken from a car and a truck, stolen earlier by two juveniles.

Ruling Delayed In Bank Case

CALGARY, Nov. 22.—(CP)—Mr. Justice Hugh Macdonald, in Supreme court here yesterday, reserved decision on the case in which the Bank of Montreal claimed $1500 from Independent Grain Co. Ltd., Calgary, and Yvonne A. Smith, Vancouver farmer, over the cashing of a grain order which was subsequently dishonored.

When reserving his judgment Mr. Macdonald remarked that "while the case appeared simple on the face it bristled with difficulties."

Store Slightly Damaged by Fire

Slight damage was caused to the floor of Blacks Grocery, 1263 137 street this morning, when a fire broke out near an overheated hot air register.

Firemen from No. 5 and No. 8 stations responded quickly to the alarm at 8:40 a.m. and doused the flames before they could spread in the store.

One-Third of Yanks Live Beyond Means

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—(AP)—More than one-third of American families spent more than they took in last year, managing to get by chiefly on credit, the federal reserve board reported yesterday.

Most of them were in lower income brackets, the board said, adding that families in the top 10th in income piled up more savings than all other families put together.

French Defence Costs Rising

PARIS, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Premier Rene Pleven will ask the French parliament for 500,000,000,000 francs (about $1,500,000,000) for the defence of France in 1951. Official sources said last night. This would be an increase of 100,000,000,000 francs (about $450,000,000) over 1950. U.S. aid is expected to yield the equivalent of an additional $340,000,000.

Successor to Smuts Elected In Africa

BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa, Nov. 22.—(Reuters)—Jacobus G. M. Struys today was elected leader of the United Party to succeed the late Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts. Struys, 56, had been acting leader of the opposition party since Smuts' illness and accepted nominal leadership in September.

Green Soldiers Brave When Buddies Killed

JASPER, Nov. 22.—Canada need have no worries about her new young soldiers will behave in the face of the enemy.

Yesterday young men of the Royal Horse Artillery were a long way from Korea but they saw their buddies killed and maintained their eyes and went into action like Canadian soldiers have always done.

"I never saw any soldiers flinch at the battlefield," declared an admiring veteran of the First Great War who was aboard the CNR hospital rescue train.

Yesterday young men of the Royal Horse Artillery were a long way from Korea but they saw their buddies killed and maintained their eyes and went into action like Canadian soldiers have always done.

"Those who weren't hurt worked with precision to rescue the injured. They had all the injured comfortable shortly after the crash."

"When on the way back to Jasper the fellows who were all right went around cheering up the boys who were hurt."

"Later they went to cars in which there were no injured and started to sing. "When their Eyes Are

FIRST CASUALTY of Tuesday morning's tragic head-on train crash at Canoe River is lifted from ambulance at University Hospital at 9 a.m. The patient, a little girl suffering burns, is gently carried by grim-faced army men from North West Army Command. A nurse supervises the transfer. Within half an hour 12 other ambulances—all the city could muster—had taken full loads to the hospital where a specially-staffed disaster ward had been set up.

54 Survivors of Wreck Admitted to City Hospitals

By Barney McKinley

Fifty-three burned and battered survivors of the Canoe River rail disaster were admitted to hospitals in Edmonton today after a long, trying ride in a hospital train from the wreck scene.

A total of 43 persons were admitted to the disaster-stricken University Hospital, mobilized to meet the second disaster this month.

Nov. 11, 16 survivors of the Leduc disaster were admitted there.

Nine wreck survivors, all of them walking cases, were taken to RCAF hospital at Northwest Air Command base. One of them was a civilian, Victor A. Campbell, 11015 19th street, a businessman on one of the shattered trains.

Two other injured passengers of the CNR No. 2 were hospitalized at Kamloops, early today.

In Royal Inland Hospital with injuries described as "not serious" are Staff Sergeant Lou, Equinault, B.C., and a Mrs. Lister, Lloydminster, Sask.

Eight other persons reported to have received minor injuries were continuing the journey.

University Hospital authorities listed 12 serious military casualties, two of them with severe back injuries; four badly injured civilians; and the rest with minor injuries.

Names of four injured civilians were being withheld by authorities. Eleven of the University hospital patients were walking injured. All were admitted to the hospital's Colonel Mewburn Pavilion.

First of the wounded reached it in city ambulance at 9:13 a.m. almost a full day after the train crash. From then on, they were admitted at the rate of almost one a minute as army, RCAF, ambulance attendants and hospital staff kept a relay of stretchers moving through hospital corridors.

Alerted the night before, the hospital staff had been waiting, emergency examine dresting for the burned and plasma for 30 persons.

Twenty doctors were standing by at wards and operating rooms to give immediate care to the shocked, haggard survivors.

Disposition of the wounded was supervised by superintendent Dr. A. C. McGowan and Dr. Frank G. Smiley, director of medical services. Superintendent McGowan released the following:

BROCKBUSH, Norfolk, Eng.—(CP)—Angier F. Huddleston had fished all day without a bite and was about to pack up when there was a tug on the line. Carefully Huddleston reeled in a small, squawking duck had gobbled the bait.

'Both Engines All Tangled Together'

Civilian Passenger On Train Tells Graphic Story of Wreck

By Jack Thorson
(As Told To The Bulletin)

JASPER, Nov. 22.—There was one bump and then two more. I was in the dining car when we hit the shock didn't seem very severe.

The diner was away near the back of train No. 2.

I'm pretty sure our train was almost at a stop when the collision occurred. We seemed to be just into or just past Canoe River when it happened.

We were in a curve. We all climbed out of the diner and ran toward the front of the train.

The engines were both all tangled up together and there was big clouds of steam over everything at the front of the trains.

The baggage, mail and express cars on our train were off the track.

The troop train was in far the worst mess.

The first passenger car of the troop train was a twisted mass of steel and splintered wood.

The second passenger coach was partially telescoped and almost right up on top of the third car. It was in these three cars that most of the casualties occurred.

There was no fire but many soldiers were scalded when steam heating pipes in the coaches broke. We all ran back to our own train when we saw there were no civilian passengers hurt and grabbed the axes and hammers that are for use in case of emergency. Everybody seemed to pitch in. But we weren't really needed.

Soldiers 'Wonderful'

It was simply wonderful the way those young soldiers moved in on the job of rescue. They had most of the injured out of the wrecked cars in almost no time flat.

I think most of them are green kids with only a few months military experience but they were just as calm as veterans.

We stripped the dining cars on both trains and used sleeping cots of porters and trainmen for emergency hospital beds.

Dr. Kimmitt of Edmonton was on No. 2 passenger train and he was truly marvelous. He was in the dining car on either train but he was right in and worked like a Trojan, administering medicine to the badly injured and binding up broken arms and fractured legs.

An engine came from Red Past Junction and supplied steam heat to the trains about an hour after the wreck. It was cloudy when collision occurred but started for only a few minutes after the crash.

There was nothing to eat. I'm sure glad those soldiers were there.

Grocery Store Thieves Hunted By City Police

Police are still seeking thieves who broke into the West Delton Grocery, 9138 118th avenue, and stole $35 in cash and 14 cartons of cigarettes.

Where You are Always Sure of Quality

Too Much, Too Little

The proposal to raise the salaries of mayor, commissioners and department heads in Edmonton is, in a general way of speaking, a thoroughly sound one because, where professional civic officials are concerned, a city will get just about what it pays for.

If it pays two-bit salaries, it will get two-bit men. Two-bit men are not quite adequate to a growing civic corporation of almost incalculable assets and 160,000 people.

Although the same principle applies to the salary of the mayor, the situation in his case is slightly different because the mayor is not usually a professional civic official but a citizen drawn temporarily from his own private pursuits to head the civic government.

Therefore, there are special dangers attached to fixing the mayor's salary too high as there is to fixing it too low. The mayor's salary should be merely adequate and not hasty and ill-considered action, based on sentiment or sloppy reasoning, can arrive at the precise line of adequacy.

If the mayor's salary is too much, the office becomes a target for opportunists and glib politicians who are seeking a sinecure.

If it is too little, it will not attract either successful business men or talented younger men who have their way to make in the world.

Misuse of the Word 'Veteran'

The projected move of the Montgomery branch of the Canadian Legion to have prohibited the use of the word "veteran" in business by those who have no right to the title will have the sympathetic backing of a large section of the public.

As members of the Legion have pointed out, a great many firms throughout Canada and the United States capitalize on a word which has high patriotic connotations and many of them are not connected with ex-servicemen at all.

The word "veteran", of course, means other things besides ex-servicemen, as any dictionary will make clear.

But "veteran", through long popular usage, has come to connote a man who has seen service in an armed force. That is the meaning it conveys to the public mind.

It is a mean and massy enterprise, therefore, to misuse and misapply this term for the sake of gain.

Sentimentally, the misuse of this word is regrettable.

Grave Judicial Error In Quebec

In ordering newspapers not to publish the names of 15 men charged with conspiracy to commit a crime, the Quebec court of Alphonse Garon of Quebec commits a grave judicial error.

By this ill-considered act he merely encourages rumor and vicious gossip to blacken the names of entirely innocent people.

The circumstances of these kinds of cases are invariably nasty. In a general way, the evidence is usually such as should not be reported fully in a family newspaper nor made available to children.

It would have been quite in order, then, for the judge to have requested the reporters to use restraint in their reports, although self-respecting newspapers usually require no such caution.

But to peremptorily prohibit the use of names is to bring the entire community under suspicion.

Growth of Great Pipe Lines Shown in Worldwide Review

The present time has been called the era of great roads. As well, it is the age of great pipelines.

During the past month two great new pipelines have been functioning. The first is the Arabian pipeline running from the fields on the Persian Gulf to Sides on the Mediterranean. The second is the first section of the pipeline which will ultimately stretch from Edmonton to Lake Superior.

Such studies as this need not necessarily tap an oilfield. For instance, Rhodania is at present suffering from serious shortage of petrol, which is handicapping development.

R. F. Haldane, Minister of Trade and Economic Development, last week partially disclosed one of the best kept secrets.

For some months, he said, negotiations have been proceeding with the Portuguese for the construction of a pipeline from Entail to Beira for the movement of petrol to the interior.

The Portuguese have agreed to co-operate, and a survey party is now working in Portuguese East Africa.

The project involves 300 miles of difficult country subject to floods and a rise of 3,750 feet from the sea-level at Beira.

Two Other Great Lines

This project recalls two others laid during similar country, one under stress of war conditions. The first is the Canadian pipeline, running from the field at Barroto to the coast at Cartagena, 300 miles away.

The pipe runs through swampy

When the salary is just right, it will accomplish these purposes:

1. It will make it possible for successful executives to temporarily leave their businesses to consult the office of mayor, without drawing on their own personal savings or sacrificing their own standard of life.

2. It will make it possible for unusually capable young men without accumulated funds of their own to accept the office and to do justice to its demands in a manner worthy of the dignity of the city.

In most cities, some mayors will be worth a great deal more than they are paid. Others would be overpaid at a dollar a year.

There is not the same selective machinery for choosing a mayor as there is for hiring a commissioner, for example.

No mayoral candidate has to pass an intelligence test nor write an examination nor produce academic credentials. Sometimes candidates get votes because they wear appealing neckties or possess an attractive smile in newspaper pictures.

Thus, the mayor's salary should be fixed with considerable thought so that it will attract exactly the right kind of candidate. For the whole hope of the city lies in good candidates.

That should be the primary objective behind the setting of a mayoral stipend. And it cannot be done in haste.

And from a sentimental standpoint, a business man who uses the word "veteran" in the same category as a slacker who dons a row of service ribbons and medals without any right to them.

That is a protest is not made, nor need it be made, on sentimental grounds.

The man who misuses the word in business is definitely inflicting a financial injury on those who are entitled to it.

There is an argument with the fact that ex-servicemen are fully entitled to special consideration from the public. They are entitled, in other words, to be "veteran" as a badge of honor.

But when permanent civilians use the term, its value as a badge of honor is lost. It is the meaning it conveys to the public mind.

It is a mean and massy enterprise, therefore, to misuse and misapply this term for the sake of gain.

Auction of Baby Beef Winds Up Royal Today

TORONTO, Nov. 22.—(CP)—Today is wind-up day at Royal Winter Fair and about the biggest thing to be cleared off the show's decks is the auction sale of baby beef.

Seven entered in competition for the King's Guineys by about 200 boys and girls from Ontario calf clubs on the block. The champion is an 80-pound Aberdeen Angus named Andy, owned by Alex McIntosh, 17, of Guelph, Ont.

If things go as well as they did in the best year in the past, Alex stands to show as much as $13,000 in his blue denim.

The fair tried a new feature this year—the "Sale of Stars". For the first time, breeding cattle are being sold at auction at the Royal. Eighty-eight Aberdeen Angus, Herefords and Shorthorns were sold at three separate auctions in the last couple of days and brought a total of $41,745.

RECORD PRICE
Aberdeen Angus have brought the best average price so far, and a bull owned by Edwards Brothers of Walford, Ont., was sold for $8,350, highest price ever obtained for an Aberdeen Angus bull in Canada and the highest for any animal sold at fair this week.

Thirty Shorthorns last night brought $5,325. Highest price of $2,550 was paid by Freling Hussen of Homdel, N.Y., to S.G. Bennett of Georgetown, Ont., for a junior yearling bull that finished fourth in his class.

At the horse show, the fair's slay night-line attraction, Great Britain last night won the international jumping competition to tie Mexico with three firsts in the seven nights, so far, of the riding con-

Balkan Paper Says Joe Louis 'Sport Gangster'

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—(AP)—The former heavyweight boxing champion, Joe Louis, blasted in Balkan newspapers as a gangster of "imperialist sport," said yesterday he is pleased that "Voice of America" broadcasts are piercing the iron curtain.

"Yesterday I made a broadcast for the 'Voice of America' denying that the Communists hold all the world's records in sports," said Louis. "Today, a Communist paper in the Balkans called me a gangster."

"It looks to me like the 'Voice of America' must be getting through to somebody."

Units for Korea Reach Fort Lewis

Troop-Carrying Trains Said Plushier Than In Last War

FORT LEWIS, Wash., Nov. 22.—(CP)—Korea-bound elements of Canada's Special Force today started on last-lap preparations before departure for the Far East.

They had a busy day ahead.

On the agenda were: Routine inspection, final kit inspection, standard unit equipment to be issued, and the checking of embarkation roles.

The troops, led by Lt-Col. J. R. Stone of Salmon Arm, B.C., and members of the 2nd Battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, reached this sprawling United States army camp last night in a steaming rain.

But, they came in style.

The train which brought them from Wainwright, Alta., was described by some of the 1,207 men as being luxurious.

PLUSHY TRAIN
Upholstered seats and dining car meals contrasted sharply with the "eight hour, 40-cent," type of rail transport that veterans remembered from Second World War campaigns.

Four trains carried the unit on its two-day trip.

Although the move was to be also an exercise in security, it was marked along the route by patiently waiting relatives. They wanted an extra glimpse of soldier kid who had spent embarkation leave with them only a short while ago.

During waking hours, relatives were told their departing fathers' chief.

THIEF STEALS WHOLE HOUSE

JOHANNESBURG, Nov. 22.—(Reuters)—Incredible police are investigating the theft of a house at Rodepoort North, a town on the Witwatersrand. C. J. The thief only left the foundations.

Mosher Raps Gov't Expert

OTTAWA, Nov. 21.—(CP)—A. R. Mosher, president of the 300,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor, today criticized a government price expert for ruling out price controls as the best means to cure inflation.

Mosher referred to a speech Monday night by Kenneth Taylor, prices board chairman and assistant deputy minister of finance. Mr. Taylor said the best means to cure excessive price fluctuations were through control of money and credit.

"The only trouble with Mr. Taylor's speech is that it comes just about nine years too late," Mr. Mosher said in a statement.

"So price control is all wrong! All through the war, from 1941 on, the government was not tending the lever! It was just fixing the hammer."

Australia received 370,000 permanent migrants from abroad between 1947 and 1950.

JASPER, Nov. 22—Lights gleamed brightly in Jasper's dark homes late last night but it was illumination for a dark cloud of sadness. Nearly everyone in Jasper was staying up late, talking over the wreck in hushed voices.

Four of Jasper's best known and best-liked citizens died in the tragic head-on collision 83 miles west of here yesterday morning. Late last night the four engineers in the Canoe River crash were still officially listed missing and the wife of one, Mrs. Harvey Church, refused to give up hope.

But the rest of Jasper knew that hope was only the hope of a brave wife and mother who fought a losing battle only for the sake of her children.

Last Run of Firemen
Engineer Harvey Church and his fireman, Hank Froelich, both climbed into the cab of their giant 6000 type engine early yesterday to pull a 17-coach special loaded with 325 tourists, bound for Korea.

At about the same time, some 130 miles to the southwest, engineer Jack Stinson and fireman Adam Olsech were starting out in the cab of another 6000 engine for Jasper, pulling Transcontinental Limited No. 2 toward Jasper.

The four beloved Jasper engineers have made their last run.

And that's why lights gleamed late last night in Jasper homes. Church, Stinson, Olsech and Froelich are mourned by all the people of Jasper.

That's the way things are in this friendly mountain town of 2,500 people, where everyone knows everyone else and last names are only used on official occasions.

That's the way it is in a railway town and in the winter-time Jasper is just a railway town.

But Jasper did not think only of its own dead and maimed. Nearly 100 people were dropped whatever they were doing and sent to the hospital as the news of the wreck came in.

Jasper's doctors, Thomas O'Hagen and Gordon Strathairn, and four trained nurses, met the rescue train with hastily collected medical supplies.

With the skilled professional personnel went scores of ordinary people. Jasper eager to help in any way possible to alleviate suffering and distress in the wreck.

Army of Willing Helpers
This small army of willing helpers was busy tearing bed sheets up for bandages as the hospital train rolled toward the scene of the wreck.

Jasper Canadian Legion branch and the Ladies' Auxiliary brought just about all the cigarettes in Jasper and placed them on the rescue train.

Della Hardy, who runs a coffee shop, just about cleaned out of her stock of chocolate bars and sent them on to the wreck.

Rev. Edward Orme, Anglican clergyman at Jasper was called to the hospital train as it stood in Jasper Station. He comforted a dying young soldier from Saskatchewan. The lad died shortly after the train arrived here. "He was in fine spirit's right up until he passed away," said the clergyman.

Expert Advice Sought On High School Heat

Victoria Composite high school's long-cried heat and ventilating system was again discussed at a regular meeting of the Edmonton Public School Board yesterday.

And because members felt that the situation needed further expert advice, they decided to ask M. C. Dewar, city architect, to appear at the next meeting to offer his opinion.

COMPLAINTS
Complaints have been made that present heating and ventilation conditions of the school in most cases are inadequate, with some rooms not equipped for heating at all.

The city driven by McKenna, Canadian Army Headquarters, Edmonton, collided with a parked truck at the south side intersection, Kenneth Stewart, Edmonton, a passenger in the car, died from injuries sustained in the crash.

Chief Justice G. H. O'Connor held that the evidence did not show McKenna to be guilty of dangerous driving. Sentenced Purvis, acted for the accused.

U OF A SCORES HERE WITH MOLIERE PLAY

The wit and wisdom of a 17th-century French dramatist, Moliere, was brilliantly for last night's Studeo Theatre audience as it did 280 years ago for the fabled of medieval Paris.

The translation of Moliere's "School for Wives" was helped by recasting of the dramatic formula into a modern language into the modern idiom. But underlying the whole production Moliere's perfect dramatic sense and his timeless comic touch.

Excellently, the plot of "School for Wives" is nothing more than boy meets girl, boy loses girl, boy gets girl back.

Both serve as foils for the wit and wisdom of the central character, Arnolphe. Why fight a losing and comical battle to preserve for himself the girl he has raised from childhood to be his wife.

WISE SELECTION
"School for Wives" seems a wise selection for the opening production of the Studeo Theatre in its praiseworthy attempt to introduce new trends and techniques into the drama produced in this province.

As Arnolphe, Robert Orchard, head of the University of Alberta Drama Society, stood out.

Play continues the rest of this week and all of next week. Tickets are on sale through the Studeo Theatre box office at the University of Alberta—M.S.

Permit For Hotel Is Approved

Town Planner
Thinks Parking
Space Inadequate

It took 10 unanimous aldermanic votes last night to set Town Planner Noel Dant's conscience at rest.

On my conscience I can't feel it right to grant the proposed Cristall hotel a development permit on the basis of plans I have seen," Mr. Dant told council. Parking space was inadequate, and only two lots would be totally inadequate for a building of the size planned.

One hour later, after arguing every possible aspect of parking space planned by the Cristall brothers, or projected by the Cristall brothers in connection with the proposed hotel at 102 avenue and 100A street, aldermen agreed unanimously to grant the development permit.

DANT'S IDEAS
Mr. Dant said he had suggested a "modern type" of parking area on ground level, by supporting part of the building on columns, to change the parking area into a shopping area.

After City Solicitor Tom Garfield told aldermen they cannot now grant a development permit unless they have a law suit on their hands, it was agreed that original plans for the hotel be dropped.

Two other intended loading docks, be accepted and the permit issued.

But the hotel architect was not willing to change the plans, and therefore he was seeking council's guidance.

Eight Beauties Seek Edmon-Teen Queen Title

ITS A TOUGH JOB that faces judges Jerry Forbes, Tom Baker, Erle Young and R. E. Taylor when they have to pick a queen from these eight beauties. The girls are competing in Edmon-teen contest for honor of being chosen most queenly type in the Y-Teen club. They are, from left, Dilya Williams, Virginia Lee Hardy, Dawn Clark, Shirley Anderson, Helen Rodgers, Marilyn Hughes, Dorcas Seaback and Lal Harrison. Queen candidates are sponsored by various high schools and youth groups in the city.

City Plans Negotiation Over Trade With CPR

First exploratory step was taken last night toward clearing up the long-standing controversy over the South Side industrial truckage area jutting into residential Saskatchewan Drive at 102 Street.

City council instructed commissioners to negotiate with Canadian Pacific Railway for an exchange of its industrial property adjacent to the south side spur on 82 avenue to Saskatchewan Drive, exclusive of actual truckage for city-owned property in some other industrial area.

Meeting was called to consider CPR's request for a permit to build a 400-foot warehouse on the east side of the property, between 84 and 86 avenues.

Town Planner Noel Dant said the question opened up an all legal zone, and he wanted a decision "so that we can plan our industrial area in a through 'truck-only' roads to link them up."

Area under debate, although only 10 per cent covered with industrial buildings, is an example of "industrial blight" perpetuated by such "stringency development," he said.

"Are we to continue such development, or are we to tell people that we have good integrated industrial areas for them to build on?" he asked.

The option will give city members a chance to vote on which to rebuild their church if sale is approved Friday.

INTERIM PERIOD
C. J. Jones, C.P. general superintendent from Calgary, said the railway is concerned with protecting its investment in the interim period before any drastic change is made in the long-debated usage of the area.

In a report to the committee, W. H. Bulbait, architect and superintendent of plant, said it would be necessary to increase the speed in the present heating system and install automatic controls.

At the meeting, members R. H. Jones and J. W. K. Shortreed were named to negotiate for the purchase of two house lots directly south of Queen Alexandra School, 102 street and 11 avenue.

Property is required for an extension to the school grounds.

The Anglican community celebration will be followed by a "citywide" memorial service at All Saints Cathedral only at 3 p.m. Sunday.

British Visitor
T. H. Moore, director of London, Ontario, said he will be visiting in Edmonton Thursday, Mr. Macdonald, who arrived in Canada on Sunday, will visit here for one day and continue on to Vancouver.

COUNCIL BRIEFS

South Side
Land Row
Is Aired

Major decisions reached at last night's special council meeting were:

1. Took first exploratory step toward finally clearing up long-standing squabble over south side industrial area along CPR spur south of Saskatchewan Drive.

2. Failed to come to grips with question of full-time acting mayor during "Mayor Sid Parsons' three months-plus leave of absence."

3. Kept long-standing commitment with First Baptist Church to let it buy two city-owned lots on 102 street which to rebuild church when choice 102 avenue-102 street church site is sold.

4. Agreed to allow Cristall hotel construction to proceed on basis of projected parking area, after Town Planner Noel Dant refused development permit because of inadequate parking space provided in plans.

Last night's special city council meeting also:

1. Asked commissioners to report at Monday's regular meeting on requested 100 per cent site coverage by the proposed new Dalmen Theatre on the south side of Jasper, just east of link of Montreal at 102 street. Town Planner Noel Dant was satisfied with actual use approved, although he said it would improve the already "satiated" density of development in the area.

2. Granted Ald. Dr. Rupert Clark an initial three months' leave of absence, but will grant him at additional three months at expiration of the first period. Dr. Clark is leaving Jan. 1 to take a fellowship in cancer research at New York City's Memorial Hospital.

3. Approved purchase of 1100 sq. ft. of city-owned property for the west end exchange. It will be bought from Andrew Electric (Canadian Ltd.) at price of $104,970. Installation is also included in the price.

COLLECTOR'S P.P.S.
Months' long struggle picked up in the streets, has become famous. He plays the trumpet, dances up to nine and walks on two legs. He is a professional dog trainer.

Man to Fill Mayor's Seat Is Undecided

Does booming Edmonton need a full-time acting mayor for the next three months? Or will it be sufficient that the acting mayor invade the mayor's office for half an hour each day to sign necessary papers?

Edmonton's 16 aldermen gingerly handled these questions during for half an hour last night without coming to a decision—after agreeing that Mayor Sid Parsons be granted leave of absence with pay, from yesterday to March 1 to recover his health.

NEXT IN LINE
In a two-minute report of Mayor Parsons' request, submitted to council by Commissioners John Hodgson and D. B. Menzies, it was stated that the majority physician had advised him to spend three special meetings. Ald. Jones was asked to move.

(The mayor has been acting for some months with a bronchial and asthmatic condition.)

Ald. Arthur Ford, deputy mayor for the first term from Nov. 3 to Jan. 16, presided at last night's special council meeting.

He said that he "simply cannot spend every day like a full-time mayor. The best I can do is in about 420 p.m. to sign documents."

Support Needed For Feminine Politicos

Social security measures put into force since the war should be basic for women candidates' platforms, said Mrs. Douglas Blair.

She addressed Alberta Liberal Women's Association at their convention banquet at the Macdonald hotel last night.

Concern for welfare of home and family are a woman's province, she said.

As executive secretary of the National Federation of Women, she brought greetings from Prime Minister St. Laurent. He asked that women be assured enquiries and requests made by them were given every consideration.

NEEDS SUPPORT "Women must support other women if they are to succeed in politics. They must be given encouragement and ways must be found to make better politicians of women," said Mrs. Blair.

Ontario WI Meets For Annual Session

TORONTO—(CP)—The annual board meeting of the Federation of Women's Institutes of Ontario yesterday heard a report that 30 new branches were organized this year, raising the total number of branches to 1,463.

Mrs. J. Cooper of Port William, provincial convener for citizenship and education, said greater emphasis this year was placed on citizenship.

She said programs were planned first around the needs of each community and extended to a study of constitutional government and the declaration of human rights.

Liberal Women Discuss Prison Rehabilitation

Rehabilitation work of the John Howard Society for women prisoners will be suggested by Alberta Liberal Women's Association.

This was one of three proposed projects discussed at today's session of the association's annual convention.

Mrs. W. A. Lamb of Edmonton introduced the potential projects for a list of Liberal women delegates from all across the province.

AID TO INCURABLES Draw and cons of asking a rehabilitation to inmate reforming government penitentiary institutions were put before the gathering.

A concerning project proposed was financial assistance to Canadian Association of Inmate Women.

"Support of Liberal Women's Association is a matter of great strength," said Mrs. Frank Conroy, reporting on the National Convention, held recently in Ottawa.

Since last convention, in 1947, membership has grown from 1,000 to 5,000, according to Mrs. Conroy, and includes members from Yukon across Dominion to Newfoundland.

Mrs. Conroy and Mrs. C. R. de la Vergne were Alberta delegates to convention, which took place in Ottawa in June.

In her remarks, reported this afternoon, Mrs. R. C. Harrison of Medicine Hat, urged association support of Canadian Association of Inmate Women.

HOSPITAL NEEDS Acute shortage of hospital beds in Alberta brought resolution to request share in federal grants for hospital construction.

Request was made to have federal social benefits such as Family Allowances from source other than Dominion. To emphasize, such benefits are federal and not provincial grants.

It was suggested that Liberal Association should open mass office to deal with proposed resolutions, queries and difficulties of provincial associations.

Mrs. Archie Boyer summarized federal government grants to the province with regard to the National Health Service.

Mrs. Daphne Garrison of Vegreville spoke on the aims of the John Howard Society in rehabilitating ex-prisoners from jails and penitentiaries.

Mrs. M. G. Dover, OBC of Calgary analyzed the recently passed County Act. She said it was a backward step in local government as it provided an opportunity for highly centralized governments to become dictatorial.

Red China Troops Claimed Deserting

Nationalists Say Soldiers Avoiding Manchuria Service

HONG KONG, Nov. 22.—(CP)—Mass desertions among Chinese Communist troops ordered to the Korean front were reported today by Chinese Nationalist sources in Formosa.

A Nationalist intelligence report said more than 1,000 soldiers of the Chinese Red 35th Army, garrisoned at Taiwan, capital of Shantung province, deserted after receiving orders to proceed to Manchuria.

The deserters were said to have taken their arms and fled into southern Shantung areas held by Nationalist guerrillas. Nationalist sources said an entire division also deserted a fortnight ago while on route from Shanghai to Manchuria.

Both deserting units were identified as part of Gen. Chen Yixi's 3rd Field Army in eastern China.

TROOPS ON MOVE
At the same time, part of Gen. Liu Po-cheng's 2nd Field Army in western China was reported moving down the Yangtze River valley toward central China to face the Nationalist 4th Army to Manchuria, said a government source.

Other reports reaching here said the Chinese Communists were intensifying their anti-American campaign on all fronts. Communist leaders were said to have called upon troops in Canton and Shanghai to boycott blue jeans and all other American goods.

The Communist raid at Peking said 25 new books about "American imperialism" have been published since the start of the campaign.

It said U.S. military advisers in Thailand actually control the country's armed forces and military bases.

'Moral Debauchery' Of Toronto Hit by Church

TORONTO, Nov. 22.—(CP)—The United Church is hit after Toronto officials with a charge demanding that the city undertake an immediate cleanup of liquor outlets, says Mayor Hiram McCallum.

The mayor last night stepped out from under demands heaped on him in a report adopted by the church's three Toronto parishes, asking chiefly for closer supervision of cocktail bars and closing hours by an augmented police force.

Specifically, the parishes wanted to see the $250,000 of the city's annual liquor license fees go into a special fund for expanding police supervision of drinking places.
